Old Man Winter Took A Slap At Us

Old Man Winter certainly played rough with us and it was not all in fun either. The weather commenced to play tricks on us last Fall when it would set in and rain every Friday and thus make mudhens out of our football boys until they got so they did not know how to play on a dry field. You might say Old Man Weather was playing a joke on us, and then when the winter months rolled around he served notice on us Christmas Day with that nice snowstorm, and all through January and February we had it, rain, snow and sleet. With it all it looked like just clean fun except on three occasions when Old Man Winter shook his fist at us and finally slapped us down - they were the times when it sleeted.

If you want to know what really scares us at Barium Springs it is a sleet storm, and when this last one came along on the night of March 5th it really did fix us. Along about 10:30 P. M. Saturday the lights went off which meant that something had happened to the wires in Statesville or between Statesville and Barium. Whatever it was was soon fixed, however, and the lights came back on, but at 2 o'clock a wire came down right at Barium and the live wires kicked up such a racket that it put the girls at the Woman's Building into a complete panic. They had to shut off the power in Statesville. Well, from that time on a good many folks were busy, not only at Barium but in Statesville too. The

Barium Girls Are Champions of the South Piedmont Conference

The picture that we publish this month is the same picture that will go on a handsome trophy that will occupy an honor place in our trophy cabinet. It is the champion girls team of the South Piedmont Conference in basketball for 1948. Our girls went through the season with only one defeat in conference play and with fifteen wins. They lost some warm-up games to the consolidated schools in the neighborhood before the season opened and they lost one game in the Salisbury tournament. By the way, this loss was to a team which the Barium girls had defeated twice in the regular season.

There are many good teams in the South Piedmont Conference. Statesville, Albemarle, Children's Home, Mills Home, and Thomasville. There are only three really weak teams. The complete record of all our teams is listed below.

Our boys ended up in fourth place in conference play. They lost two games to Statesville, one game each to Albemarle, Kannapolis, and Monroe. Our junior team played a short schedule, and as this is written are engaged in the junior tournament. The results of that will appear elsewhere in this issue.

In the Salisbury tournament both of our teams went down in the semi-finals, our girls losing to Statesville and our boys to Lexington, but three of our players were chosen for all-tournament honors: Frances Stricklin, forward, on the girls team and Janie Hall, guard, and Jack Mangum from the boy's team. They attended a banquet given by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the tournament, in the Yadkin Hotel Tuesday night, March 16th., and there received their trophies.

This is Mr. Archie Calhoun's first year as coach of basketball. He handles both teams. To place one team in the first division and another team as champion is quite an achievement in any year, particularly so in the first year.

Three of the regulars of the girls' team are seniors and have played their last game for Barium - Lucille Stricklin and Sadie Buie, forwards, and Janie Hall, guard. Betty Jo Smith is also a senior and has seen a lot of service but was not a starter.

The boys lose only one by graduation, Charles Barrett. They will miss Charlie because in several games he was the high scorer.

This is the final news on basketball. It has been a lot of fun and the basketball trips have been much more pleasant - we have had a bus - and it was lots of fun, particularly coming home from the games. Mr. Hethcox did the bus driving and he is the world's best. The crowd usually spent a good deal of time coming home from the games singing and you could not tell from the music whether we had won or lost. Usually there was a stop somewhere for a hamburger or hot-dog to fill up that void due to an early supper and a long time until breakfast. It was fun winning a championship, but almost as much fun just going and playing, win or lose.

We are proud of our teams and like to associate with them.

Following is the scores of our basketball games:

The Message of the Pulpit

By Rev. R. S. Arrowood

Isaiah 61:10. "He hath clothed me with the garments of Salvation."

This subject was suggested to me by the outline of a sermon which was preached by a Jewish Rabbi in a Synagague during the first century of the Christian Era. As seven was The Sacred Number, he found in the Psalms and Prophets seven garments for Christ.

Remember in the first place that clothes are the outer covering, but that the being underneath is the same. Yesterday a mechanic was underneath an automobile, clothed in old overalls, blackened and greasy. Today washed, shaved, in fresh linen, and a good suit he may look very different but he is the same man.

So, though we see Jesus under varying conditions and clothed dif-

The Every-Member Canvass for Little Joe's

(By Jos. B. Johnston)

This is a purely personal narrative and is my own experience in recent every-member canvasses. We have heard elders congratulate themselves on their election to the Session by saying that now they would not have to bother any more in the every-member canvass, that the deacons would look after that. Well, here at Little Joe's Church we do not have enough deacons to do the job and the members of the session are called in to team up on the every-member cavass day's work.

I am one of the older elders and might plead an excuse for getting out of the job, but I am not inclined to do so because it is so much fun. During the last three or four years I have had one of the younger deacons to team up with and we had most of the high school boys and girls on our list. This year my team-mate was the very youngest deacon - a young man who just a few years ago was one of the high school boys himself. We started out on Sunday afternoon, March 14th. We visited the area known as the Quads where the high school boys live. Some of them were waked up out of a sound sleep and had a card and pencil poked at them. Some were reading, some were listening to the radio, and some (beleive it or not) were out playing marbles. The cheerfulness with which they all stopped what they were doing

Junior Tournament Held Again At Barium

We hope our readers will not get the idea that we do nothing else but play basketball at Barium. It just happens that this issue of The Messenger is the one which has to have the writeup of so many basketball doings that is crowds out some other news sometimes.

The final act of the basketball season is the Junior Mid-Piedmont Basketball Tournament. In it there are 32 junior teams entered. The boys play under a 125-pound weight limit and the girls must come from the ninth grade or under.

Due to conflicting tournaments in Catawba County and in Winston, a number of schools that ordinarily take part in this tournament were not able to enter this year, so Barium entered three girls' teams, Statesville entered two girls' teams, Mooresville entered two boys' teams, and Claremont entered two teams of both boys and girls.

It would take too long to put all of the scores down. The tourna-

Worth-while Reading

(From The Connie Maxwell)

Most of us will agree that a child gets his sense of values in life from the people with whom he grows up. In fact, although we seldom think of it, there is no other way for him to obtain a sense of values.

Spend an hour with Gloomy Gus and how do you feel? Gloomy! Spend an hour with the happiest person you know and how do you feel? Hardly gloomy. Associations have a great deal to do with how we feel and act.

We no longer say a child inherits his behavior from his parents. He acquires it by association with people, and developes it as he learns to deal with people in one way or another—acceptably or otherwise.

As a matter of fact, the cards are stacked against the child from the start. He will have little choice in what he becomes. He wants to do as he pleases, but these horrible adults are continuously interfering in their efforts to make him conform. How ever you take it, growing up is a fight for the child and many harmful things can happen to him if he is misunderstood.

After all, each of us who deals with a child has a deep-seated need of our own to see him grow up in our own image. Too often we forget the needs of the child and the fact that he is an individual with an inalienable right to be so. We also forget that our image may not be the only valid one in the universe.

If the people with whom the child grows up determine his development, are some more important than others? Of course. The parents are the key persons. The child's experiences with his parents will determine more than anything else his adjustment to other people. If he has been happy with his parents, he will exhibit few problems. On the contrary, if he has had to fight his parents to get a decent break, his feelings toward other adults will be colored by his experience. He will feel that he has to fight to get his due where-ever adults are concerned. A child who has had unhappy experience with his parents—

1—may fight everybody.
2—may fight people who seem like his parents.
3—may steal.
4—may play the big-shot.
5—may become outright delinquent.
6—may wet the bed.
7—may be sullen.
8—may withdraw and live within himself because trying to live like a human has hurt him at every turn.
9—may have nightmares.
10—may fail in school.
11—may run away.

There are many other ways in which he may express his unhappiness.

To grow up normally, a child must have two parents who love him, understand him and encourage him in his efforts to conform to life's demands, or he must have the best possible substitues. This seems to be an innate need. The child must belong and must know that he belongs to someone who loves him for what he is and regardless of what he is.

Consequently, good—bad—indifferent—moral—immoral—dead—or alive, the most important people to any child are his parents; and next his relatives. And the most important decision any person takes upon himself is that of cutting the ties between a child and his parents. This can be done psychologically just as effectively and just as completely as it can be done physically and with much more serious implications for the child.

We are again talking about human relations. But what do these things imply for us—the people who try to substitute for the home and parents. There are many implications. The child comes to us with his behavior pattern well-developed. He has already learned a great deal about people. But so many of our children have difficulty with one or both parents and often with other people. They may have found that they could not trust the adults in their world. After all, few adults are consistent and children just will look for consistences. If they burn their hands on a stove, they will expect to be burned if they touch it again. But if they are "burned" by an adult, they may be "loved to death" by the same person the next minute. It is all rather confusing. Why should they trust us? As a matter of fact, they won't until we prove we are different.

We are not talking about punishment. But suppose the child has been hurt by adults. What if we hurt him also.

There is no reflection upon any one of us that a child exhibits any or all the problems mentioned when he comes to Connie Maxwell—we cannot control the past. There is no reflection when one of us fails. The important thing is that one of us succeed. The child first must respond to a person. This is why it is so important that the janitor and the plow-hand be the kind of people who understand and love children, because the child's need may be met by the janitor as often as by the social worker. There is a reflection upon each of us when a child leaves with the same problems he brought.

We can be very sure the child's problems are related to his feelings about his own people. Patience, and understanding will be required to restore his confidence in people. Some one must break the chain of events. These problems persist from generation to generation as all of us are so often reminded.

Whether we want the responsibility or whether we are capable of accepting it, when a child comes to us it is up to each of us acting as individuals, and all of us acting collectively, to break the chain and send the child away at peace with himself, capable of living with people and confident that he carry on. These traits can come only through a conviction on his part that he is loved for and in spite of what he is.

There is no greater challenge. There is no greater responsibility. There is no task in which failure can work such unlimited havoc.

To sum up the child has an inborn need for his parents, or substitutes, which must be met if he is to be normal and happy. His behavior is determined largely by his associations with these parents. When he comes to us, many behavior patterns have already developed. If he is to be helped to overcome his problems, it is we who must break the chain of events, else the problems may pass on to future generations. There is no greater responsibility. There is sufficient knowledge to equip us to deal with these problems, but we must work on our feelings about this knowledge.

The Message of the

ferently, as he is revealed to us in the word of God, yet he does not change. He is the same yesterday, today and forever.

The first garment Christ wore was the garment of honor and majesty. Even as Jacob loved Joseph, the beloved son of Rachel, and gave him a princely robe of rich and royal colors; so God the Father loved and honored his only begotten Son and gave into his hand the stupendous works of creation.

"In the beginning was the word." He was the image of the invisible God, first born of every creature, for by him were all things created that are in heaven and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones or dominions or principalities or powers, all things were created by Him and for Him and He is before all things and in Him all things consist, that in all things He might have the preeminence."

It was he who spake from Mt. Sinai and who passed by as the herald angels proclaimed, "The Lord, The Lord God."

Daniel saw the ancient of Days clothed in a garment as white as snow. John and James and Peter saw Jesus on the Holy Mount and amidst the pure white snows of the heights of Mt. Lebanon His garments glistened more white than the snow about.

The Jewish preacher taught that the white raiment of the ancient of days represented forgiveness, but surely he missed the mark. White is the emblem of purity and of innocence. Jesus was pure, the only perfect man. He was not only clothed with the garment of purity which is in a sense a negation; His was also a positive character.

He was clothed with righteousness. Jesus not only did not break the law in its smallest part, but he filled the law full, He fulfilled it. He carried it out in every precept, every ordinance and command, every implication; He obeyed the spirit. And he went not as a galley slave driven to the bench, scourged to his task at the oars, but joyfully; "In the vol of the Book it is written of me, I have come to do thy will, O my God."

And so out of his Ivory Palaces, clothed in garments of beauty and glory, smelling of myrrh, aloes, and cassia, He came into this world of woe. Where He was clothed in purity, in righteousness, obedient to the law.

He was clothed too with humility.

He girded himself with a towel and washed his desciples feet.

But for us surely the most significant of the garments of Christ is that one mentioned in Rev. 19:13 "He was clothed in a vesture dipped in blood: and His name is called the Word of God."

Jesus conquered Satan, Jesus prevailed over sin, Jesus destroyed death, Jesus wrought out salvation not by the shedding of rivers of blood from his enemies. His was a conquest by consecration; a rule by righteous; a salvation by sacrifice. We were bought by the blood. He conquered with the conquest of the cross and on that triumphal day when on his snow white steed he leads forth the hosts of heaven he will still be our Savior, clothed in a vesture dipped in blood.

But as I meditate upon this subject I could not but remember that when they came to a place of a skull the soldiers took His garments and divided them and they lifted Him upon a cross stripped of His raiment.

Yes, He was stripped of honor and majesty. Despised and rejected. Even holiness, purity, and righteousness were taken from Him and the filthy rags of our sin were laid upon Him that you and I might be clothed upon with the robe of righteousness; that when the prodigal son shall come to himself, he can go home, and the father will say "bring forth the best robe and put it on him, and a ring for his hand and shoes on his feet." That we may be clothed upon with the righteousness of Christ that we may, being clothed with the wedding garment, enter into the marriage supper of the Lamb.

Shall we return to our Jewish Rabbi? He went his round of ceremonies, he read the scrolls of Moses, he uttered the usual prayers, and he even preached on the garments of salvation of his Messiah. And a young teacher passed him on the street, teaching as never man taught in tones of love and deep sincerity, performing miracles of healing even dying like a God. But the Rabbi saw him not and knew him not.

But a certain woman said to herself "If I could only touch the hem of His garment I might be healed."

"She only touched the hem of His garment
As to His side she stole
Amidst the crowd that gathered around Him
And straightway she was whole."

Have you touched Him? Fathers, have you touched Him, Mothers have you touched Him, Children, young men, and maidens, have you touched Him?"

"Oh touch the hem of His garment
And thou too shall be free
His saving power this very hour will give
New life to thee."

SEWING ROOM

With one glance around the Sewing Room it looks as if it were already spring. All the bright yellows, pinks, greens, reds and blues give this appearance to our busy work-room. How we wish you could all be with us at the Easter Parade! Then we would not have to tell you how busy we have been.

The seniors, not to be out done by the rest, have been busy making evening gowns. How striking we will look in our reds, pinks, blues, lavender, blacks, greens, and whites.

Three of our girls, Mildred Monroe, Betty Coffey and Betty Jo Smith, are going to the Beta Club Convention in Raleigh Easter week-end. Have a good time, girls!

Well, basketball season is finally over, and we are now convinced that our girls can do something besides sew. It will seem good to have all the girls back at work again, at least for awhile.

The Glee Club has an invitation to go to Covington, Virginia the first week-end in April. They are doing a lot of performing this year.

Look for us next month.

SYNOD'S COTTAGE

Hello Folks,

This is the Synod's Cottage Boys again with our monthly news broadcast.

Its "marble shooting" time again and the knees in our overalls are wearing out so fast, Mrs. Bowling is having a hard time keeping them fixed.

We had a visit from Mrs. Nisbet, Mrs. Murell, and their friend Mr. Taylor last Saturday. They brought us some candy which we enjoyed very much.

We certainly have been busy getting all the clothes out of the clothes rooms so we can have them painted. So, thanks to you, Mr. Ervin, our work will be much lighter.

Mrs. Goodrum, the substitute matron in our division, is with us for a while to learn us and our ways. We like her very much and hope she likes us.

HOWARD COTTAGE

Hi Folks,

We want to thank our Mooresville friends for the delicous box of cookies they sent us not so long ago.

This month we had eleven girls on the honor roll. Last month we had three new girls on the honor roll and our matron, Miss Jackson took them to a show.

Shirley Shaw is taking piano now and she is so thrilled.

Mr. Johnston comes to see us on Sunday nights and tells us stories and last Sunday night we invited him over to see us and we surprised him with a birthday cake.

We are so happy that we get to see movies about the Bible on Wednesday nights at the church. The last one we saw was, "The Calling of Matthew".

This month we had two girls to go to the birthday dinner. They were Shirley Hall and Edna Bau-

Mrs. Smith and the girls at the sewing room made eight of us the prettiest Easter dresses you have ever seen.

Little David Lee Spencer has been spending the afternoon with us lately. Elizabeth Ann Huddleston and Louise Bradshaw are the official nurses right now.

See you next month.

ANNIE LOUISE COTTAGE

This is the Annie Louise Girls with the latest news from our cottage.

The weather is very changable up here. It is cold one day and hot the next. We surely hope it is warm Easter because we don't want to go to church wearing coats.

We have had report cards and 13 of our little girls got on the honor roll. Hope all of us can get on it next time.

Our junior basketball games start the 16th of March and last until the 22nd. We hope we can see most of them.

We have about two more months of school. Can't wait until school is out. But I'm sure we'll miss our teachers but we won't talk so much about that until about May.

We hope all our friends can come up once in awhile to see us.

Until next time.

— The Annie Louise Girls.

BABY COTTAGE

So many things have happened since you last heard from us.

We had so much fun playing in the snow and helping our big sisters make a snowman.

One of our big sisters has just come back from the hospital after having her tonsils out. We are glad to have her back.

All you can see around our house right now is bang, bang, and more bangs. We have all had our hair cut and we think our bangs look cute.

Jacky Taylor had a birthday this month. She really did enjoy all the good things she had to eat at the birthday table.

Mr. Lyon came from Statesville the other day to take our pictures. We all put on our Sunday best, and tried to look just as pretty as could be.

We have a new victrola at our house. At night after supper our big sisters play it for us. We use it in Kindergarden too.

We will all be so glad when old man winter packs his suitcase and goes back to the North Pole. When the sun shines we have such a nice time playing outdoors.

It will soon be Easter Bunny time. We just can't wait.

Bye Bye.

QUAD

Well, here are the three musketeers again bringing you some of the news hot off the wires of the Barium Press.

At the present time we are tied up with the sponsoring of the junior tournament and all the boys are having fun beating out of school and work. Your Ace reporters have been down looking the situation over, and although there are boring moments, on the whole everything seems to be moving along smoothly.

Recently, tears have been seen in some of the quad boys eyes because your Ace reporters are finally going to leave with a diploma or a certificate. Don't get us wrong, some tears have also been in quite a few of the girls eyes, but we can't say the same about any of the matrons or teachers. We are not positive but the senior girls have informed us that we have only 4,838,400 seconds before we are left standing alone in this cruel world.

Leaving the quads a few minutes we venture to the senior table, there we find the Queens of the conference, Stricklin and Hall trying to put on weight so that they can try out for the wresling team.

Since this is our last article, all fan mail must be post-marked before May 15, 1948. Please address all your mail to the three musketeers, c/o Barium Springs, N. C.

We leave you with this question, "Do you know anything about Mrs. Slush or the sitting man"?

LEES COTTAGE

Here we are again folks, bringing you the news. A Friend gave us some marbles and we are having fun playing with them.

Miss Ford's birthday was not long ago. We gave her a pot of flowers and Miss Carpenter gave us a party. Some of the boys are going to join the church Easter Sunday.

They are having junior tournaments. Our school teacher is sick.

Miss Ford is putting more flowers in her flower bed and they are going to be pretty.

Junior Tournament

ment is arranged on a double elimination basis and started out on Tuesday, March 16th, winding up Monday night, March 22nd. Four games were played every afternoon and four games at night until the finals when just two games were played.

The Barium girls (The Rockets) were the champions in the girls' division. The names of the other two Barium girls' teams were The Vixens and The Kittens. The Mooresville boys were the champions in the boys' division for the second year in succession. Mount Holly was the runner-up in the boys' division and the Statesville No. 1 team was the runner-up in the girls' division.

The record of the Barium teams is as follows:

The Barium Kittens were defeated by Mount Ulla 34-20. In their second game the Kittens defeated Troutman 22-9, and were finally eliminated by Hiddenite 21-18. The Barium Vixens defeated Hiddenite 17-16 and were defeated by Cool Spring 22-13 and finally were defeated by Mount Ulla 28-20. The Barium Rockets who came through as final champions played four games. They first defeated Celeste Henkel 45-18, Scotts 29-24, Claremont No. 1 29-21, and finally Statesville No. 1 29-19.

The Barium boys reached the semi-finals. In their first game they defeated Claremont No. 2 69-6: in their second game they defeated Stony Point 26-11: in their third game they were defeated by Mount Holly 21-19.

The attendance for these games was not up to that of former years because of other tournaments in progress at the same time, but those spectators who did come seemed to enjoy the enthusiasm of these juniors. Certainly what they lacked in skill they made up in enthusiasm and apparently everybody left in a good humor.

Sixteen trophies altogether are given in this Junior tournament. The four major trophies are given to those who play in the finals - the champions and the runners-ups.

The other teams winning trophies in the girls' division were Hiddenite, Stony Point, Cool Spring, Claremont No. 1, Mount Ulla, and Scotts. In the boys' division trophies were won by Salisbury, Scotts, Troutman, Barium Mount Ulla, and Stony Point.

Three former Barium Boys brought teams to this tournament: Carson Wood who coaches at Scotts, Joe Savage who coaches at China Grove, and Dewey Barnhill who coaches at the Junior High School in Salisbury. By the way, during the regular basketball season, our varsity played two games with the Mills Home and the Mills Home teams are coached by a former Barium boy, Marley Sigmon.

It was a mighty nice season, and now we will stow away our basketball doings and in just a week we will stow away some rations by way of celebration at the basketball banquet, and then we will go outdoors. Tennis and softball, flowers and gardening, bees and fruit trees, and a little later haymaking and corn planting will be the order of the day.

The Every-Member

to prepare their pledge cards was interesting. Some had a pretty good idea of how much money would pass through their hand during the next twelve months. They put down a definite amount. The others could do no better than to put down 10 percent of whatever they received. I happen to know these boys pretty well and I know the efforts they make to live up to their pledges. They contribute, in addition to their church pledge, through the Boy's Bible Class and that class does a pretty big job. The budget which they have voted on themselves amounts to more than $5.00 a Sunday and they have never yet fallen under their budget.

After finishing up at the Quads, we went to the Lottie Walker Building and there our business was transacted all too quickly. The girls were up ready and waiting for us, most of them with a pencil already in their hands. They knew exactly what they wanted to do. Those cards were prepared and signed up so quickly and back in our hands that before we knew it it was a case of "Here's your hat, what's your hurry?" We almost wished that we might have had to argue some of them into signing, but it just worked out entirely too smoothly. Before we knew it our assignment for the day was over and we reluctantly journeyed back to my home where we prepared our cards to turn over to the chairman of the canvass.

One hour is what it took. We had some ninety cards carefully, and we know prayfully, prepared. A person could not have spent a more pleasant hour doing anything to have the company of an eager and enthusiastic young deacon and the ready cooperation of all the young church members among the students. It just made a person feel that our Church is a live, going concern and that we old-timers can get a lot of satisfaction. But we must not just coast along, we have a job to do too. The vigor and enthusiam and the drive to go onward and upward is in such abundance in the hearts and lives of the young members. It is good to have an every-member canvass. We find out lots of things about our neighbors and ourselves too.

damage at Barium turned out to be rather mild compared with the situation in Statesville. We went into Statesville to see how they were getting along about four o'clock in the morning and things looked pretty grim. About the only electric lights we saw burning were at the transformer station. Back to Barium we came. Ike White, our young master mechanic, was already on the job and doing everything possible. He had gotten up one of the firemen to come and start our little boiler as the big boiler with the stoker could not be used. The dairyman was notified that there would be no current for milking. The kitchen was alerted not to depend on steam or electricity for breakfast. We did not notify anybody that there would not be any hot water in the bathrooms. We decided to let them find that out after they got in the showers! What did worry us though was the idea of trying to wash dishes with no dishwater and no hot water.

Well, as good luck would have it, they managed to get us a little current between six and seven o'clock - enough to get the cows milked, so that job was done, but we had no heat until nearly nine o'clock and that cold water dishwashing job was just as we thought it would be.

Being Sunday morning the people in the Quads did not feel the need of heat quite so early and got along fairly well, so summing it all up we really came out of the crisis without too many bad effects, except the wear and tear on our worrying machine.

We try to have lots of faith at Barium, but we remember back in the days when we have had sleet storms that cut us down without current for two or three days on a stretch, and we do not want that to ever happen again but we know in the course of time it will happen again.

It gives you an all-gone feeling when you look at a stoker and have no electricity to run it. It reminds you somehow of a dead horse in a stable - a horse that is a beautiful thing when it is alive but a big, bulky, useless thing when it is dead. Well, that is the way these stokers are. They not only are big and useless but they won't let you get to the boiler to do anything by hand. The power company had plenty of power at the power station, but there was not any power at Barium. There was lots of hot water in the boiler but we could not get it to the bathrooms because it goes by electric pumps. We had a lot of coal in the coal bin but we could not get it in the firebox without electricity to operate the stoker.

We hope this is the last slap from Old Man Winter, and that from now on he won't even shake his fist at us. We can stand his snows, his rain, and his cold, but his sleet storms are just too much for us. We just admit it. We hope someday to have something worked out to take the fear out of sleet storms anyway.

Electricity is a wonderful servant, so wonderful in fact that we have it helping us do almost every job on the place. It even has something to do with this article which is dictated on an Ediphone operated by electricity, it is set up on a linotype machine operated by eletricity and printed on a press operated by electricity and even folded in a machine operated by electricity.

All of these things make us very dependent on this wonderful servant, and that makes it all the more terrible when this servant goes on a sitdown strike, and that is when sleet or a storm of some kind interferes with its coming to us.
